Comrades, de you see the blood-red
Lightning flash o'er you and me?
Comrades, do you hear the uistant
Thundersof disloyalty?
Comrades, waken! Thore is danger;
Gird the dusly armoy on,
Furl the saintly flag of freedom,
Snatch the truery awned and gun,
As your fathers did befre you.
In the days of lexington—
In the days of! exington—
In the days of Wallington—
In the days when freenen won
Viotory on Victory?

Reil it northward—rell it southward—Like the billow of the sea;
Tis the authem of the Urion.
This the music of the free!
When the Father of our fathers
Blessed the work that they had done.
Raised a value from out the ocean.
And the melody begin;
And it lives as in the olden
Honored days of Lexington—
In the days of Lexington—
In the days of washington—
In the days when freemen won
Victory on victory!

Freemon, comrades, brothers, look ye.
How the engles scar on high
Guarding every nation's banner,
Floating brevely in the sky?
Where the little branches murmur.
Peace above the low and tone;
To the tomb of Washington.
Like the hearts that flew around him
In the days of Lexington.
In the days of Lexington.
In the days when freemen won
Victory on victory!

Victory on victory!

Troing ways the esgles; comrader,
Trail the flag upon the tomb;
It will rise again imprietd
With a living glory bloom!
Marob ye, then, forth to battle,
Glowing like the summer sun,

PLAYING FOR A LIFE. AN EPISODE IN A GAMBLER'S CA.

BY JOHN B. WILLIAMS, M. D.

[From the Pamily Journal.] One day, however, it rained very hard, so that they could not dream of going out. The prince then spoke of passing the time at play.

The apartment which the prince, the count and the baron occupied was an immonse saloon hung with tapestry, and adorned with portraits the size of life, rudely onough executed but richly emblazoned. A large fire burnt on the hearth, before which was placed an oak table with carved feet. On the table was spread a Persian-cloth of the most dazaling colors. The prince blew a little silver whistle, and ordered the servant who answered the summons, to bring cards, six bottles of Rhine wine and three glasses. This done the prince left the but returned in a few moments bring-ing with him a little steel coffer. He placed his coffer on the table, and made a sign to Count de Lacrosce to sit op-The count glanced at the coffer with

SOUTHERN VIEWS OF SUCRESION. While the Fire-eaters of South Carolina, Georgia, and other of the disaffected Southern States, are having their say, and doing pretty much as they please, uttorly regardless of what may be the consequences to themselves and others, it is a matter of consolation to lovers of the Union, to discover a strong consorvative feeling existing in some quarters, even of the rebellious districts, and which is struggling to make itself heard and felt. The Alabama State Sentinel, for instance, presents to its readers the following arguments in opposition to the secosion of Alabams from the Union, and the formation of a | A Dear Cheap.-James Barnes, Esq., separate government. The editor of the town clerk of Egremont, bought a new Sentinel has long been a londing Demo- angled cheap lamp, "warranted non-ex-

"Now turn to the map of the United States. Look at the situation of Delaware and Maryland. What is to provent their slaves from young to Pennsylvania and Kraitucky. Side by side you have Pensylvania, Ondo, Indian and I linois. Theriver is frozen in winter. It is dry and shallow its summer. A man can swim it, roses it in a boat, on a plank, a raft, or on a log_at any season.

avim it, cross it in a boat, on a plank, a rait, or on a log_at any season.

Look at Missouri, Arkanss and Teass, particularly Missouri, There is Illinois on the cast, lows on the north, a d Kansas on the west, all free States. Dissolve the Union, and they become to Missouri, nach of them, foreign movernments, utchiely such as Canada and Mexico, where your slave, once because, had as well be dead or free. Laudas Illians to be a dead or free. Laudas Illians to be dead or free and the control of the Union, and he soon learns that every farm house, every hamiet and village is the olty of refuge, and beyond question would go tarm nouse, every hamme and white is the oity of refuge, and beyond question would go now length to get over the line. Here are five States in this condition. They cannot dispense with the Constitution and the Fugi-

"But we will form treaties." "Yes, when one can make a bargain and have things all his own wey. We have treaties with England and Merico, but none we know of reached the case. If we cannot live together under the Constitution, or consent to have the weenforced, it is folly to delude ourselves with the hopes of a treaty for this return of ingitives from either justice or labor." But we will pursue our slaves, if need be, with a hundred men." "Yes, and they will tesiet with two hundred men." "Yes, and they will tesiet with two hundred men." "Must comes next but an armed invesion, and proclamation offering freedom to the slave? Three five States foll nearly half a million, more than two fiths, of the outire cote of the Bouth."

Again, the Louisville, Ky., Democrat, urging the duty of theborder slave States to stop seconion, "discusses how far the interests of the several States in Francisco at the Atheneum Malodeon-a the South are identical. It says of the concert salcon-price of admission twelve cotton States :---

"They are seaboard States, with ports accessible to the commerce of the world. Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri are interior States, with no outlet to the occan but through the Territory of other States, with interests and opinions favoring meretricted free triale. The sorder States with interests and opinions favoring meretricted free triale. The sorder States are graing stock-producing, and, to some extent, manufacturing States, with interests and opinions favorable to incliental resting the fault States. tent, maintscriving States, with interests and opinious favorable to incidental revenue protection. The interest of the Gulf States is to lower the standard ralue of slave property and "e-open the African slave trade." The interest of the border States is to elevate that stan ard value and continue the probletion of that trade. Nor, are the two tiers of States so nearly allied by the bonds of sympathy and ties of blood as it is generally supposed to be. We venture to say that not tive hundred native Kentuckians and Missourians are sixtled in. South Garollas, Georgia and Florida, and vice sers s, not five hundred natives of those trates are soft od in Missouri of South Garollas, is settled with thee brothers and kindred of, our people with the second of our blood and firsh of our feel.
